Get the skills you need to excel in the fast-paced world of advertising.

Master the fundamentals you need to succeed in advertising and marketing

In Advertising and Marketing Communications – Management, you'll learn the fundamentals of campaign planning and the creative process. You'll use industry software to interpret market research, develop strategies and learn basic design and copywriting. You'll engage in the planning, buying and selling of media for digital and traditional platforms. These skills are just the beginning!

Take advanced communications courses and get hands-on experience

In third year, you'll take advanced advertising and marketing courses such as Creative Branding, Media Management, Advertising Campaign Management and Global Communications. You'll also put everything you've learned into practice with a specialty Capstone project. In this portfolio-building project, you'll develop a campaign proposal for a real business client from the community.

Get work experience before you graduate with an advertising internship

Our mandatory 10-week marketing or advertising internship gives you valuable real-world work experience before you graduate. This field placement will also give you the chance to network, building contacts and connections in the communications field.
