Build business smarts and creative thinking for your communications career.

Learn the essentials of advertising and marketing communications

Our 2-year advertising and marketing diploma is designed to teach you everything you need to find communications jobs in Canada. You'll get foundational knowledge of the advertising business as you learn media development, creative management and account management. You'll also learn how to develop campaign proposals and determine budgets, getting creative in every aspect of your coursework.

Work with industry-standard marketing and advertising technology

You'll work with technology that's vital to the modern advertising and marketing communications workplace. You'll use the same professional software employed by many advertising agencies to plan and create ad campaigns. You'll also learn search engine optimization (SEO), social media optimization (SMO), and how to work with popular social media platforms and their analytics tools.

Learn from industry professionals in a hands-on environment

Sheridan's advertising and marketing courses are taught by faculty who have worked in the industry for years. With their experience in creative advertising and marketing communications, they create classrooms that mimic the workplace. You'll engage in individual projects and groupwork, master adding professional polish to presentations, and even learn how to write the perfect business email.

Career Opportunities

Sheridan's Advertising and Marketing Communications graduates are highly regarded for their sound understanding of advertising and marketing communications strategies and tactics, well-rounded business skills and high level of professionalism. You'll be well-equipped to begin an exciting career!
